SPEAKING TEST PREPARATION · ONLINE WORLDWIDE

Stop memorising. Start speaking.

I've rated spoken English on the ACTFL proficiency scale since 2012. I know what raters listen for, and the most common reason good speakers lose points: memorised answers.

FROM THE RATING DESK

Raters are trained to recognise rehearsed material, and a memorised answer is rated lower than the same person speaking naturally. Good preparation builds flexible speaking, not scripts.

HOW I HELP

Mock interview and rating	A realistic practice test, with an honest reading of your current level and what is holding it back.
What your level means	The difference between the levels, in plain language, and exactly what the next one asks of you.
Targeted coaching	Fluency, pronunciation, pacing and handling unfamiliar topics, with a theatre-trained ear for delivery.
Thinking on your feet	Strategies for questions you didn't expect, so you keep talking instead of reaching for a script.
